1. The Cambodia Inclusive Livestock Value Chains Project (CILVCP), a trust fund which is funded by the Global Agriculture and Food Security Program (GAFSP) for a US$20 million grant to the Royal Government of Cambodia, and the World Bank is the supervising entity for the grant. The institutional arrangements for project implementation will follow the Government's Institutional setup. The GDAHP of the MAFF is the Implementing Agency (IA) tasked with managing and coordinating the project's implementation. The project supports Cambodia's national priorities for resilient, inclusive, and sustainable agricultural development, including climate change adaptation and gender equality. It aims to improve animal husbandry, promote climate-smart livestock practices, and reduce greenhouse gas emissions, aligning with Cambodia's climate goals for 2030 and 2050. The project specifically addresses the needs of women in agriculture, aiming to increase their access to training, markets, and financial resources. Improved livestock production and market integration will boost nutrition for poor households by increasing access to protein-rich animal products. The initiative leverages private-sector financing for livestock value chain development, incorporating technical assistance and capacity-building for producer groups.
